

An Object Lesson For Your Boy

Every father wants his boy and girl to learn the lesson of habitual saving.

Do you know, fathers, that one of the best ways to teach your children to save regularly is to have a savings account yourselves?

Let that boy of bring your savings deposit to the bank as "regular as clockwork" and he will get the habit himself—he can't help it.

Incidentally, a little nest egg will be good for father, too.

THE SUSPENSE IS ENDED

INTERESTING PUZZLE IS AT LAST SOLVED.

Children and "Grown-Ups" Have Been Equally Interested in Series of Advertisements Which Have Acquainted Them With Delightful New Cereal.

A good many readers of this paper have been watching with considerable interest the series of advertisements showing a billboard, a bill poster and a few youngsters who are much interested in watching the development of the pictures.

Today you have the finish—the last letter in the name of the article that this series is meant to advertise. One letter at a time it came, until today we have the entire name—"G-o-l-d-e-n-R-o-d." It is the brand under which the Golden Rod Milling Company of Portland, Ore., makes up a number of pure food products, among which are Golden Rod Oats, Golden Rod Oat Flakes, Golden Rod Wheat Nuts, Golden Rod Wheat Flakes and Golden Rod Pancake Flour. This brand is sold by local grocers and is destined to instantly become popular among all classes and ages in this section.

The writer has tried a good many breakfast foods, but has never found anything to equal the "GOLDEN ROD" brands.

The "GOLDEN ROD" Oats, "GOLDEN ROD" Wheat Nuts and the "GOLDEN ROD" Pancake Flour are especially seasonable just now. Get a package of each on your next visit to your grocer's and you'll find that you have not only solved the "high cost of living" problem, but that you have also found that rare combination—"something really good to eat that is also beneficial."

In each package of "Golden Rod" products will be found an alphabetical letter. Save them until you can spell "Golden Rod" and get unconditionally a fine 42-piece dinner set.

ON PLANTING PEACHES

Manager of the Bagley Canning Co. Gives Some Pertinent Advice On Subject.

Talent, Ore., Nov. 18, 1912.

Editor Ashland Tidings: The tree planting season is coming on and many of our valley people are possibly debating what they will plant. With reference to peaches the writer has some positive convictions, born partly on experience, which he feels is due prospective planters for their best interests.

Without consuming too much of your space I will make these statements:

The successful peach orchard, from a commercial standpoint, demands a peach which will stand long shipments and a quality which will make it a good canning or drying peach. This last insures a local demand if the shipping market is flooded as it was this summer.

We must recognize the fact that conditions are changing—that there are large sections north and south of us with large plantings coming on where nearer markets or earlier fruits give them the advantage.

We have advantages in quality and, in the air-drained foothill sections, surer crop conditions than a large number of competitive sections; but we must have a care as to what we plant if we are to be in the enduring market.

I should plant early peaches sparingly. Some orchardists are making their best profits at the present time from these, but their shipping possibilities are very limited and they are good for nothing else.

The Elberta, Lovell, Muir or Crosby of the freestones, and Runyon's Orange, Phillips, Lemon and Tusken's Cling of the clings, furnish a list which combines desirable shipping, canning and drying possibilities and make possible an all-round market.

Yours very truly,
BAGLEY CANNING CO.,
Wm. R. Bagley, Mgr.

The United States exported more than 3,500,000 long tons of anthracite and more than 13,800,000 long tons of bituminous coal last year.

One year's supply of coal for New York, loaded into 50-ton cars, would make a train reaching from that city to Salt Lake City.
